Integrity of application

The department is committed to maintaining the integrity of the visa and citizenship programs. Please be aware that if you provide us with fraudulent documents or claims, this may result in processing delays and possibly your application being refused.

Step 1 – Eligibility

You should use this form if you meet the general eligibility criteria for Australian citizenship, that is, you:

- are aged 18 years or over and under 60
- are a migrant who is a permanent resident
- satisfy the residence requirement (see Step 2)
- are likely to reside, or to continue to reside, in Australia or to maintain a close and continuing association with Australia, and
- are of good character.

The Citizenship Wizard on the citizenship website can help you check your eligibility.

New Zealand citizens

Special eligibility conditions apply for New Zealand citizens who arrived in Australia before 26 February 2001 (see New Zealand citizens on page 7).

Children

Children under 16 years of age can be included on a parent or legal guardian's application form.

Children 16 or 17 years of age will need to complete their own application using form 1290 Application for Australian citizenship – Other situations.

Step 2 – Residence requirement

The residence requirement is based on the time you have lived in Australia and the time you have spent outside Australia. The Residence Requirement Calculator on the citizenship website can help you calculate whether you meet this requirement.

If you became a permanent resident before 1 July 2007 and you apply before 30 June 2010 you must:

- have been living in Australia for 2 years as a permanent resident in the 5 years immediately before applying, including one year in the 2 years immediately before applying.

If you became a permanent resident on or after 1 July 2007 you must:

- have been living in Australia on a valid Australian visa for 4 years immediately before to applying, including one year as a permanent resident immediately before applying, and
- not have been absent from Australia for more than one year, including no more than 90 days in the year before applying.

Exclusions

A period of confinement in a prison or psychiatric institution by order of a court because of an offence against Australian law, will not be counted as part of your lawful residence except in some limited circumstances, see Ministerial discretions.

Exemptions

There are cases where you may be exempt from the residence requirement.

You are exempt from the residence requirement if you:

- have served 90 days in the permanent forces of the Commonwealth of Australia, or
- have served 6 months (130 full attendance days) in the navy, army or air force reserve of the Commonwealth of Australia, or
- were discharged from defence service as medically unfit for service as a result of that service.

Ministerial discretions

The Minister has discretionary powers to vary the residence requirement in the following circumstances, if you will be in Australia at the time your application is decided.

If you will be overseas during this period, only discretions 5 and 6 apply.

1. If you were in Australia unlawfully as the result of an administrative error, then that period of time may be treated as lawful residence.
2. If you were in Australia lawfully but not as a permanent resident as the result of an administrative error, then that period of time may be treated as a period of permanent residence.
3. If you were in Australia lawfully, but not as a permanent resident, then that period of time may be treated as a period of permanent residence if you would otherwise suffer significant hardship or disadvantage.
4. If you were in prison or a psychiatric institution, then that period of time may be counted towards the residence requirement if it would be unreasonable not to do so, taking into account the circumstances that led to your confinement.
5. If you have spent time outside Australia as a permanent resident with your spouse or partner, or are the surviving spouse or partner of an Australian citizen and have a close and continuing association with Australia, then that period of time may be treated as time spent in Australia.
6. If you spent time outside Australia and are a permanent resident in an interdependent relationship with an Australian citizen and you have had a close and continuing association with Australia, then that period of time may be treated as time spent in Australia.

You will need to provide documents to support your claims at the time you lodge your application.

Step 3 – Read the citizenship resource book

The citizenship test resource book Australian Citizenship: Our Common Bond provides you with information you will need to prepare for your citizenship test. To download a copy of the citizenship test resource book, please visit the citizenship website at www.citizenship.gov.au or to order a copy, call the Citizenship Information Line.

Step 4 – Original documents

You will need to provide the department with a range of documents to prove that you are who you say you are and to establish you have not had any serious criminal convictions. These documents are called proof of identity and good character documents.

When applying for variations to the residence requirement or fees, you will need to provide additional documents – these are called supporting documents.

You must provide original documents at your citizenship appointment. If you have to get documents from overseas this can take time.

You will not be able to complete the application process without these documents.

Translations and certified copies

If your documents are not in English, you will need to provide official translations. In Australia, you must use translators accredited by the National Accreditation Authority of Translators and Interpreters. For more information, see www.naati.com.au

Copies of original documents must be certified by a person with the appropriate authority. See Proof of identity declarations – list of professions on page 7 for people who may certify document.

If you are outside Australia when applying:

- contact the Australian mission in the country which issued the documents for advice on acceptable translators
- have your copies certified by a citizen of your country of residence who belongs to a profession or occupation on the list on page 7.

Proof of identity

To prove your identity you must provide the following documents.

1. Three original documents that collectively show your:
 - photograph
 - signature
 - current residential address
 - date of birth, birth name and any changes of name.

If you do not provide these documents, your application will not be accepted and will be returned to you.

If you have evidence of when you first arrived in Australia, you should provide these documents also.

The checklist on the next page will help you identify suitable documents. If you have difficulty finding suitable documents please call the Citizenship Information Line.

Note: If you are outside Australia when applying you can have the proof of identity declaration completed by a citizen of your country of residence who has known you for at least one year and belongs to a designated list of occupations (see Proof of identity declarations – list of professions on page 7).

Children

You will need to provide proof of identity documents for each child on your application, including:

If you have more children than the space on the application form allows, please use form 1195 Proof of identity and declaration for each child.

Provide endorsed photographs separately. Do not attach photographs to the application form.

If you are 18 years of age or over, you will need to show that you are of good character.

A conviction is a criminal charge leading to a guilty verdict in a court of law resulting in imprisonment, a fine or good behaviour bond. A traffic infringement, such as an on-the-spot speeding or parking fine, is not considered a conviction.

Spent convictions

You must declare spent convictions in your application.

The spent convictions law allows people with minor convictions to disregard those convictions after a certain period of time. A conviction may be considered spent if:

- it is 10 years since the date of the conviction (or 5 years for juvenile offenders), and
- the person was not sentenced to imprisonment for more than 30 months, and
- the person has not re-offended during the 10 years (or 5 years for juveniles) period, and
- a statutory or prescribed exclusion does not apply.

The department is allowed to ask you for this information for the purpose of assessing your application.

Overseas penal clearance certificates

Overseas penal clearance certificates, or police checks as they are known in some countries, show whether a person has a criminal record.

You may need to supply an overseas penal clearance certificate as part of your documentation if you are 18 years of age or over.

When to provide overseas penal clearance certificates

Penal clearance certificates from overseas countries are required if:

- you lived or travelled overseas since the age of 18 years or over, and

- the total time spent overseas added up to 12 months or more, and
- the time spent in any one country was more than 90 days, or
