Introduction

Welcome to Australia and in particular to New South Wales.

The Australian, State, Territory and Local Governments of Australia, together with non-government agencies, provide Australian residents with a wide range of services. This booklet will give you a basic idea of the sort of services and assistance that is available, and where you can go to ask for advice.

This booklet is targeted at all prospective and newly arrived migrants to Australia with a particular focus on permanent migrants and humanitarian entrants as well as their sponsors and service providers. Refugee and humanitarian entrants should also refer to information supplied specifically for them by the Department of Immigration and Citizenship (DIAC).

It will always be difficult to make all information in the booklet relevant to all readers. It is important to note that some permanent migrants and most temporary visa holders may not be eligible for all services.

Please take the time to read this booklet carefully. We believe you will find it useful as you begin your new life in Australia. You should use the most recent edition, available from many settlement service providers and from the 'Living in Australia' web pages www.immi.gov.au/living-in-australia. We suggest you read Chapters 1– 4 first. They deal with issues of particular concern to you during your first weeks.

The issues you will face as you begin your new life in Australia are complex and changing. There will be challenges, and also rewards. In the end, your success will depend on your own efforts, as well as the goodwill of those willing to help you. Welcome and good luck!

1 What to do soon after arrival

Below is a list of 8 important things you should do as soon as possible after arriving in Australia. Tick them off as you do them.

Your checklist

- A. Apply for a Tax File Number
- B. Register with Medicare
- C. Open a bank account
- D. Register with Centrelink
- E. Contact the Health Undertaking Service
- F. Register for English classes
- G. Enrol your children in a school
- H. Apply for a driver's licence

See Chapter 2, Help with English for information about interpreting services and about having documents translated.

See Chapter 4, Where to go for help for information about organisations that can help you with settling issues.

A. Apply for a Tax File Number

Do this first. To receive an income in Australia, you need a Tax File Number (TFN). Income includes wages or salary from a job, payments from the government, and money earned from investments including interest on savings accounts.

How to apply for a Tax File Number

In Australia, you can telephone the Australian Taxation Office (ATO) and have an application form sent to you. Alternatively, you can apply for a TFN at the ATO website 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Forms are also available from ATO or Centrelink shopfronts which are listed in the White Pages telephone book.

See Chapter 7, Employment for more information on taxation.

B. Register with Medicare and consider taking out private health insurance

The Australian Government provides help with medical expenses through a scheme called Medicare. The government also subsidises the cost of most medicine under the Pharmaceutical Benefits Scheme (PBS). Medicare and the PBS are administered by Medicare Australia.

You may be eligible to join Medicare and gain immediate access to health care services and programs. These include free public hospital care, help with the cost of out-of-hospital care, and subsidised medicines. It is important to know that not all migrants are eligible for Medicare assistance and you should contact Medicare to find out if you are eligible.

Medicare has an Information Kit which is translated into 19 different languages and is available in English, Braille and on audio CD and cassette. It explains Medicare and other government health services and the eligibility requirements for benefits and payments. Remember to ask for it when you visit your local Medicare office, Migrant Resource Centre or go to the website.

How to register with Medicare

To register with Medicare, you should go to a Medicare office 7 to 10 days after your arrival in Australia and bring your passport, travel documents and permanent visa. If all registration requirements are met, you may be given your Medicare card number to use until your card arrives in the mail in about 3 weeks. In most cases you will pay for medical care then receive a refund for some of the payment. If you need to see a doctor urgently, you can register with Medicare without waiting 7 to 10 days and ask for an interim number.

Emergency treatment is available on a 24 hour basis at the 'Casualty' or 'Emergency' departments of public hospitals.

In addition to Medicare there are also many different private health insurance funds that offer options that cover services not covered by Medicare eg. dental care, most optical care and ambulance transport.

For more information about private health insurance, see Chapter 11, The health system.

C. Open a bank account

In Australia, people keep their money in a bank, building society or credit union. Most income including salary and wages and government benefits is paid directly into an account. Australians use bankcards and credit cards for many purposes.

It is advisable to open a bank, building society or credit union account within 6 weeks of your arrival, as you usually need only your passport as identification. After 6 weeks you will need additional identification to open an account, and you may have difficulty if you don't have many documents. Advise your bank of your Tax File Number (TFN) to avoid higher rates of taxation on interest earned.

For further information on opening a bank account go to the website below.

Smarter Banking – make the most of your money

www.bankers.asn.au

D. Register with Centrelink

Help with job seeking, social security payments and other assistance is provided through the government agency called Centrelink. Newly arrived residents can register with Centrelink to get help with looking for work, having overseas skills recognised, and accessing relevant courses. Centrelink also has Tax File Number application forms and can assist you to lodge your application with the Tax Office, so that access to any payments is not delayed.

Payments may be made from the day you contact Centrelink. To be paid from the day you arrive in Australia you must make contact on this day and lodge a claim within 14 days.

Humanitarian entrants are eligible for Crisis Payment from Centrelink. The entrant must claim within 7 days of arriving in Australia or contact Centrelink with an intent to claim within 7 days of arrival and lodge a claim within 14 days of that contact. For more information see Chapter 8, Social security.

If you have children, you may be eligible for government-funded Family Assistance payments to help with the cost of raising them.

For more information see Chapter 2, Help with English; Chapter 7, Employment; and Chapter 8, Social security.

E. Contact the Health Undertaking Service

If you signed a Health Undertaking (Form 815) at the request of a Department of Immigration and Citizenship (DIAC) overseas post, you must ring the Health Undertaking Service after you arrive in Australia.

Once you contact the Health Undertaking Service, they will advise you of the nearest Health Authority Clinic where you can have your follow-up medical checks.

Health Undertaking Service 1800 811 334

F. Register for English classes

Communicating in English is very important and the key to your successful settlement. If you cannot speak English, we strongly encourage you to learn as soon as practical after you arrive.

English language courses for new arrivals in Australia are provided under the Adult Migrant English Program (AMEP). As a new resident, you may be entitled to receive free English language tuition of up to 510 hours. The AMEP offers a number of options so you can still learn English if you have work, family or other commitments.

For more information, see Chapter 2, Help with English.

G. Enrol your children in a school

Under Australian law, children between the ages of 5 and 15 years must attend school. You should enrol your children in a school as soon as possible. For more information see Chapter 10, Education and child care.

H. Apply for a driver's licence

If you are a permanent resident visa holder and have a current driver's licence from another country, in English or with an official translation from an acceptable source, you are allowed to drive for your first 3 months after arrival. After that, if you want to drive, you will need to have the appropriate Australian driver's licence. This will usually require you to pass a knowledge test, a practical driving test, and an eyesight test. In Australia, driver's licences are issued by state and territory governments.

If you do not hold a licence from another country you will need to pass a Driver Knowledge Test to get a learner's permit.

All licence applicants need to:

- if they hold an overseas licence, present this to the Road Traffic Authority (RTA) (with an official translation which can be acquired from either the Community Relations Commission or Department of Immigration and Citizenship)
- provide proof of identity to satisfy RTA requirements
- provide proof of NSW residential address
- pass a Driver Knowledge Test (unless exempt)
- pass a practical driving or riding test (unless exempt)
- pass an eyesight test
- pay the required fees (unless exempt)

Recognised Countries

Holders of a car or rider licence from one of the following countries are exempt from the knowledge test and practical driving test when applying for a NSW licence of the same class:

Austria
Belgium
Canada
Croatia
Denmark
Finland

2 Help with English

Learning English for adults

The Adult Migrant English Program (AMEP)

Learning English is one of the first and most important steps you can take towards settling successfully in Australia and achieving your goals. If you are eligible, the AMEP can provide you with basic English language tuition that will help you deal with everyday social situations and some work situations.

If you qualify for the AMEP, you can learn English for up to 510 hours, or until you reach functional English, whichever comes first. If you are a humanitarian entrant who has had difficult experiences like torture or trauma before coming to Australia, or only a small amount of formal schooling, you may be able to access more English lessons.

Your English speaking, reading, writing and listening skills will need to be tested to see whether you qualify for AMEP classes. If your English was not tested overseas as part of your migration application, it will be tested when you register for AMEP classes in Australia.

You must register for AMEP classes with your local AMEP service provider within three months of coming to Australia or gaining permanent residence. You must begin classes within one year, or you may not be able to learn English with the AMEP. Once you have registered, you may be able to delay starting your English classes if family, work or other responsibilities make it difficult for you to attend classes.

The AMEP offers a number of different ways to learn. You can go to classes full-time or part-time, during the day, in the evenings and on weekends. Classes are held in city and rural areas. You can learn English at home by Distance Learning or with the help of a home tutor. If you have children under school age your service provider can arrange free childcare while you are in class.

Other English learning options

English language tuition is also available through targeted programs managed by the Department of Education, Employment and Workplace Relations (DEEWR) and state/territory governments. DEEWR has 2 employment related language programs for adults of working age (15 - 64 years).

The first is the Language, Literacy and Numeracy Program (LLNP) which provides up to 800 hours of language, literacy and numeracy training to those having difficulties finding employment due to barriers imposed by low literacy or English language competency.

You may be eligible for LLNP if you have already completed an AMEP course or you are not eligible for AMEP. The LLNP includes English writing, speaking, listening, reading, mathematics and vocational learning to assist you in finding a job. To be eligible you must be registered as a Job Seeker with Centrelink.

DEEWR also provides intensive English language tuition to eligible newly arrived students below 18 years of age under the English as a Second Language for New Arrivals (ESL-NA) program. The program aims to improve the educational opportunities and outcomes of newly arrived students of non-English backgrounds by developing their English language competence and facilitating their participation in mainstream educational activities.

English courses are also available through other educational institutions and community centres. See Chapter 7, Employment and Chapter 10, Education and child care, under Vocational education.

Translating and interpreting services

Interpreting

The Translating and Interpreting Service (TIS National) can provide a telephone interpreter in more than 120 languages and dialects. You can ring TIS National for the cost of a local call (call charges from a mobile phone may vary). TIS National is available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week and can assist in emergency situations from anywhere in Australia.

If you cannot speak or understand English and you need to talk to a government agency, ask them to contact TIS National to help you to communicate with the agency. Normally a telephone interpreter will be provided but if necessary, government agencies can arrange for an interpreter to be present in person. The government agency should pay for the cost of the interpreter. Make sure that you check the office hours of the government agency you wish to speak to before calling.

If you have problems understanding government agencies' automated telephone systems, then ring TIS National directly and they will help you.

If you need the assistance of an interpreter when you consult with your medical practitioner you can ask them to contact TIS National on the Doctor's Priority Line to arrange for a telephone interpreter. A medical practitioner can also book an on-site interpreter if this is required.

'I need an interpreter' card

TIS National produces an 'I need an interpreter' card for use by non-English speakers who require interpreting assistance. The wallet sized card, featuring the National Interpreter Symbol, is designed to assist non-English speakers request an interpreter when they need to communicate with government agencies, community groups and businesses. Non-English speakers can simply show the card to advise that they need an interpreter.

A panel on the front of the card allows the non-English speaker's language preference to be written, and the reverse side features TIS National's contact details. The card can be used by any person in Australia who speaks a language other than English and needs or wishes to use an interpreter to communicate.

TIS National provides the cards free of charge to a variety of government agencies, community groups, and not-for profit agencies for distribution to their non-English speaker clients at a community level. The cards can be ordered by email from the TIS National Client Liaison and Promotions team at tispromo@immi.gov.au

Note: Generally TIS National operates on a fee for service basis and interpreting charges may apply.

Translation of your important documents

A summary/extract translation into English of certain documents which are necessary for your settlement in Australia may be provided free of charge by the Department of Immigration and Citizenship (DIAC). These documents might include birth and marriage certificates, driver's licence, educational qualifications and employment references.

If you want to seek any free translations, you must be a permanent resident or Australian citizen and you must request them within 2 years of your arrival or grant of permanent residence. You should lodge your request for translation through an Adult Migrant English Program (AMEP) service provider (see below).

The translation of other documents can be arranged through accredited translators on a fee-for-service basis. For a list of accredited translators in your language, visit the National Accreditation Authority for Translators and Interpreters (NAATI) website.

3 Emergency services

In an emergency, telephone 000 for:

- Police
- Ambulance
- Fire Brigade

Calls to 000 (triple zero) are free. Be prepared to provide your name, address and telephone number (if you have one), and the type of service you need.

If you cannot speak English, you must firstly tell the operator what kind of help you need (simply say: “Police”, “Ambulance” or “Fire”), and then say your language. You will be connected to the Translating and Interpreting Service (TIS National) directly, so do not hang up. The TIS National interpreter will then help the police, fire or ambulance service to obtain your address and other details.

Police

In an emergency, telephone 000 and ask for the “Police”.

For non-urgent matters, ring 131 444 or your local police station. Their numbers are listed under ‘Police stations’ in the White Pages telephone directory. There is no charge for police services.

Police in Australia are not connected to the military forces and do not play a part in politics. They aim to protect life and property in the community, prevent and detect crime, and preserve peace. The police may intervene in family issues where there is a domestic dispute or concern about physical, sexual or psychological abuse.

Ambulance

If you need an ambulance, telephone 000 and ask for an “Ambulance”. Ambulances provide emergency transport to hospital and immediate medical attention. Remember, DO NOT HANG UP the telephone if you do not speak English – say your language and an interpreter will assist you with your call.

In some states and territories, the ambulance service may be free or discounted to people who get an Australian Government pension or who have a Health Care Card (given by Centrelink to people assessed as low income earners). It can be expensive if you do not have these benefits, so you may wish to become an ambulance member or join a private health insurance fund that covers the cost. See Chapter 11, The health system.

For information on the Ambulance Service of NSW see the website provided. For local issues or to lodge a compliment or complaint with them, call the number provided:

Ambulance Service of NSW

(02) 9320 7777

Fire Brigade

In an emergency, telephone 000 and ask for the “Fire Brigade”. The fire brigade puts out fires, rescues people from burning buildings and also assists in situations where gas or chemicals become a danger. In non-urgent cases, you can use the telephone number listed under ‘Fire brigades’ in the White Pages telephone directory.

Other emergency numbers

Useful emergency telephone numbers are listed at the front of your local White Pages telephone directory. They include:

Child Abuse Prevention Services \(CAPS\) 1800 688 009

4 Where to go for help

Settlement services for recently-arrived migrants

The Department of Immigration and Citizenship (DIAC) funds the Settlement Grants Program (SGP) which provides settlement services to recently-arrived permanent residents arriving as humanitarian entrants and family stream migrants who have low English proficiency.

Dependants of skilled migrants including temporary visa holders such as Prospective Marriage visa holders and Provisional Spouse and Interdependency visa holders and their dependants in rural and regional areas who have low English proficiency can also access these services.

Under the SGP, organisations are funded to provide projects to help new arrivals become self-reliant and participate equitably in Australian society as soon as possible after arrival. Projects can be in the areas of Orientation to Australia, Developing Communities and Integration.

Information on the SGP, including details of SGP funded organisations, can be found at

Ethnic and community organisations

There are many ethnic and community organisations which may be able to help you or direct you to those who can assist you. There are also clubs, associations and religious organisations which you might want to join. They are listed under 'Clubs' and 'Organisations' in the Yellow Pages telephone directory. Your Migrant Resource Centre or Migrant Service Agency will be happy to give you a list of clubs and organisations which may suit your needs and interests.

Initial settlement support for humanitarian entrants

The department's Integrated Humanitarian Settlement Strategy (IHSS) offers initial intensive settlement support to newly-arrived humanitarian entrants, generally for around 6 months, but this may be extended for clients facing additional challenges.

The IHSS aims to help humanitarian entrants achieve self sufficiency as soon as possible by offering them specialised help on a needs basis. Through a case management approach, the needs of humanitarian entrants are identified and a case plan is developed for the delivery of support.

Further information on the IHSS, including details of IHSS funded organisations, can be found at

You may also like to take out comprehensive car insurance which provides wider insurance cover.

5 Australian customs and law

Knowing and understanding Australian customs and laws will help you to adjust to life in the Australian community.

Australia is a tolerant, diverse society with people from many different cultures and ethnic backgrounds. Australians come from all corners of the world. About 45 per cent of Australians were born overseas or have a parent who was. Although English is the national language, there are around 300 languages including indigenous languages, spoken in Australia. Australians also practise a wide variety of religions.

In Australia, everyone is free to express and maintain their cultural and religious traditions, within the law, and participate and belong as an Australian. At first, you may not be used to such diversity. However if you are open and respectful towards other people, ideas and traditions you are likely to fit in and be successful in your new life.

Responsibilities and values

The freedom and equality we enjoy in Australia depends on everyone fulfilling their responsibilities. We expect you to be loyal to Australia, support our democratic way of life and help maintain Australia's tradition of acceptance, inclusion and fairness for all.

Our values provide the basis for Australia's free and democratic society. They include:

- respect for the equal worth, dignity and freedom of the individual
- freedom of speech
- freedom of religion and secular government
- freedom of association
- support for parliamentary democracy and the rule of law
- equality under the law
- equality of men and women
- equality of opportunity
- peacefulness
- a spirit of egalitarianism that embraces tolerance, mutual respect and compassion for those in need.

Equality and anti-discrimination

You have the right to be respected and to have your needs considered as fairly as everyone else. Similarly, you should respect other people, whether they were born in Australia or, like you, migrated here.

Under federal and state/territory anti-discrimination laws, no person should be treated less favourably than others because of their age, race, country of origin, sex, marital status, pregnancy, political or religious beliefs, disability or sexual preference. This applies to most areas, including employment, education, accommodation, buying goods, and access to services such as doctors, banks and hotels. Men and women are equal under the law and for all other purposes.

Australia has a tradition of free speech. However, it is unlawful to insult, humiliate, offend or intimidate another person or group on the basis of their race, gender, marital status, pregnancy, or political or religious beliefs.

The Australian Government's Living in Harmony program promotes the Australian values described above, mutual obligation and understanding between people of different backgrounds. It also aims to address intolerance. It does this through:

- local community projects
- partnerships with national organisations
- a public information strategy, which includes Harmony Day on 21 March each year.

Crime is usually described as any behaviour or act that is against the law and may result in punishment. Everyone in Australia is expected to obey all Australian laws. Religious and cultural practices must conform to existing Australian laws. For example, the laws in states and territories prohibit practices involving female genital cutting and violence in the home.

Domestic or family violence

As in other countries, violence towards another person is illegal in Australia and viewed very seriously. This includes violence within the home and within marriage, otherwise known as domestic or family violence. This is behaviour by a person which may result in the victim experiencing or fearing physical, sexual or psychological abuse and damage, forced sexual relations, forced isolation or economic deprivation.

The legal age of consent

The legal age of consent, that is the age that the law recognises your right to agree to have sex with another person, varies from state to state in Australia. It is illegal to have sex with someone younger than the age of consent and there can be severe penalties for anyone breaking this law.

In New South Wales the Age of Consent is 16 years old for both men and women. This law protects younger people from exploitation.

You can find out more about the age of consent by contacting a sexual health clinic or family planning clinic.

Rights of children

Australia has a strong commitment to protecting the human rights of children, which may be different to some cultural practices relating to child rearing. Specific practices which are illegal under Australian laws include forced early marriage and female genital mutilation (cutting). It is also illegal to take or send a child to another country for forced early marriage or female genital mutilation, or to have someone else organise this. There are services available to respond to these practices.

Children are protected by law from physical, sexual and emotional abuse, neglect and violence, both at home and at school, and reasonable provision must be made for their supervision and care. Physical discipline is generally discouraged, and if it causes significant harm, is illegal. It is not allowed in schools.

Where a practice harms or is likely to harm a child or young person, Child Protection Services may become involved to ensure their safety and wellbeing. If you or someone you know needs protection from violence or abuse, you should contact the police or a child protection service.

Women and girls arriving in Australia may have health problems due to the practice.

Driving

To drive a car in Australia, you must have a driver's licence and the vehicle you are driving must be registered with the government. For information about licences and motor vehicle registration see Chapter 1, What to do soon after arrival.

Disobeying or breaking traffic laws can result in large fines, the loss of your driver's licence or even imprisonment. Using a mobile phone while driving is against the law, unless you do so using a 'handsfree' kit.

There are seatbelts (also called 'restraints') in all cars for adults and older children. You will require special government approved restraints for young children and babies. The law states that everyone in your car must use a seatbelt or a proper child restraint, and if you are involved in a road accident you must report it to the police immediately.

In some areas it is possible to hire child safety restraints. To find out about the availability of this service in your area contact:

Drugs, smoking and drinking

There are many laws about having possession of and using drugs. Breaking drug laws can lead to severe penalties. Drug laws in Australia distinguish between those who use illegal drugs and those who make a business of supplying, producing or selling them.

Smoking tobacco is prohibited in a growing number of places in Australia, including most government offices, health clinics, and workplaces. Smoking in restaurants and shopping centres is also prohibited in most states and territories. Non-smoking areas are often, but not always, indicated with a 'no smoking' sign.

It is an offence for a retailer to sell tobacco products to a 'minor' (that is, someone under 18 years of age). Supplying tobacco to a minor is also prohibited in most states and territories.

Drinking alcohol is legal in Australia but only in certain places at certain times. It is against the law for any person to sell or supply alcohol to a person under the age of 18 years (a minor). It is also against the law for a minor to drink alcohol except on private property such as a private home. Drinking alcohol is also prohibited in some public areas.

Environment

A clean environment and the protection of nature are important to Australians. It is illegal to litter, create pollution or dispose of wastes without permission. Native animals, fish, shellfish and plants are protected by law. Do not hunt, fish or collect plants or shellfish before checking whether you need a permit. In addition, there are special rules which apply to National Parks to prevent them being spoilt.

Noise

There are laws that protect Australians from excessive noise. The regulations vary across the states and territories, and also depend on whether the area is zoned for commercial, industrial or residential use. In general, neighbours are tolerant of occasional noise, but if it is frequent, excessively loud or occurs at night, a complaint may be made to the local council, the state or territory environment authority, or the police.

Animals

Australia has laws to protect animals from cruelty and neglect. It is forbidden to kill animals in the backyard. People who mistreat animals and birds can be fined or imprisoned. There are local laws on what domestic animals can be kept at home. Household pets like dogs need to be registered with the local council. Look under 'Dog' in the 'Government' section of your White Pages telephone directory.

If you get a pet you are responsible for looking after it properly including feeding it and keeping it clean. Many pets need to be vaccinated regularly and treated by a vet when they are sick or injured. Having household pets de-sexed and micro-chipped is expected in Australia and is also the responsibility of the owner. You can get more information from your local vet or the Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (RSPCA).

Meeting people and communicating

When meeting someone for the first time, it is usual in Australia to shake the person's right hand with your right hand. People who do not know each other generally do not kiss or hug when meeting.

Many Australians look at the eyes of the people they are talking with, as a sign of respect and to show that they are listening. However, you should be aware that it may make some people feel uncomfortable or embarrass them.

When meeting a new person, many Australians are not comfortable being asked questions about their age, marriage, children or money.

Unless you have been introduced to someone by their first name, or unless you are asked to call them by their first name, it is usual to address them using their title and family name, (eg. Mr Wong, Ms Smith, Mrs Brown, Dr Lee). In the workplace and with friends, Australians usually call each other by their first names.

Polite behaviour

Australians usually say "please" when asking for something or for a service and usually say "thank you" when someone helps them or gives them something. Not saying please and thank you will be seen as impolite.

Australians usually say "excuse me" to get someone's attention and "sorry" when they accidentally bump into someone. Australians also say "excuse me" or "pardon me" when they burp or belch in public or in someone's home.

You should always try to be on time for meetings and other appointments. If you realise you are going to be late, try to contact the person to let them know. This is very important for professional appointments as you could be charged money for being late or if you miss the appointment without letting the person know in advance. A person who is always late may be considered to be unreliable.

If you receive a written invitation it may include the letters 'RSVP' with a date provided. This means that the person inviting you would like to know whether or not you will be attending. In such a case it is polite to reply by that date.

Most Australians blow their noses into handkerchiefs or tissues, not onto the pavement. This is also true for spitting. Many people will also say "bless you" when you sneeze – this phrase has no religious intent.

It is important to know that some behaviour is not only impolite but is also against the law. Examples include swearing in public, pushing in line, and urinating or defecating anywhere except in a public or private toilet.

Clothing

Australia is a diverse society. The variety of clothing which people wear reflects this diversity. Many people tend to dress casually or informally for comfort or according to the social situation or climate. Many people also choose to wear traditional clothes, which may be religious or customary, particularly on special occasions.

There are few laws or rules on clothing, although there are requirements to wear certain clothing for work situations and in certain premises. For example, safety boots and hard hats must be worn for safety reasons on construction sites, and police, military and staff of some businesses wear uniforms.

Clubs, movie theatres and other places may require patrons to be in neat, clean clothing and appropriate footwear.

You may find some clothing styles confronting or offensive. For example, some women wear clothes that reveal a lot of their body. You should not judge them by the standards of your previous country. In Australia, no matter what a woman's style of dress might be, you must not interpret it to mean they have low morals or that they wish to attract men's interest.

Common Australian expressions

Many common Australian expressions or slang may seem strange to people new to Australia. If you are unsure what an expression means, it is acceptable to ask. Some common examples are:

- Bring a plate – when you are invited to a social or work function and asked to "bring a plate", this means to bring a dish of food to share with other people.
- BYO – this means to 'Bring Your Own' drink which may include alcohol, juice, soft drink or water. Some restaurants are BYO. You can bring your own bottled wine, although there is usually a charge for providing and cleaning glasses, called 'corkage'.
- Fortnight – a 'fortnight' is a two-week period. Many Australians receive salary or wages every fortnight.

6 Housing

Renting a private house or flat

Renting a house or flat is usually done through real estate agents that act on behalf of landlords or you can rent directly from a private landlord. Rental properties are advertised in newspapers especially on Wednesdays and Saturdays in the 'To let' and 'Accommodation vacant' sections. You can also go to real estate agent offices and ask to see their list of vacant rental properties. Housing in Australia can be difficult to find and rent can be expensive.

In Australia, it is preferable to have a written agreement between a tenant and a landlord so any terms and conditions can be more easily identified. A 'lease' or a 'residential tenancy agreement' is a written contract made between a tenant and a landlord and will usually be for a fixed period of 6 or 12 months, however you are entitled to negotiate the time period of the lease with a landlord or their agent before you sign. You may be able to renew a lease at the end of a fixed term period.

There can be costs involved if you break a lease before the end of the agreed period, so do not commit yourself to a lease that is for longer than you are able to stay. Do not sign a lease unless you have inspected the property and fully understand the terms and conditions in the document, as it becomes legally binding after you sign it. For more information, see Tenants' rights and responsibilities below.

At the start of a tenancy you will generally be asked to pay one month rent in advance as well as a rental bond. A bond is a deposit paid to the landlord and generally should not be more than the monthly rental amount. The landlord or estate agent must lodge your bond with the Residential Tenancies Bond Authority.

Before you move in the condition of the property is recorded in a document called the 'condition report' and is completed by you and the landlord or their agent. This document can help avoid disagreements when you move out as it records any damage that was already there when you moved into the property. When you leave a rented house or flat you get the bond back if you do not owe any rent when you leave and the property is clean and without damage.

You may be eligible for some financial assistance to help meet the cost of paying the rental bond and the first month rent in advance. You may also be eligible for Rent Assistance which can help you meet your rental payments. Information about these payments is available from Centrelink.

In NSW the Department of Housing also helps people on low incomes to rent private accommodation through rental assistance schemes such as Rentstart. This may include assistance towards bond money, advance rent, temporary accommodation, and rental arrears. Generally, Rentstart assistance will contribute up to 75 percent of the cost of rental bond.

People in severe financial and housing circumstances may be eligible for Rentstart Plus and provided with:

- up to a full bond;
- up to 2 weeks advance rent (3 weeks for furnished accommodation); and
- up to 4 weeks rent in temporary accommodation.

To be eligible for Rentstart Standard, Rentstart Plus, and Rentstart Tenancy Assistance clients must:

- intend to remain in that particular location and the tenancy is likely to be sustained for up to 12 months;

- be citizens of Australia or permanent residents; or be holders of a Temporary Protection visa or asylum seekers who have lodged an application for permanent residency;
- meet public housing income criteria;
- meet public housing asset's criteria;
- have limited cash assets, generally less than $1000; and
- be able to sustain a tenancy in the private rental market.

There are exemptions to some of these criteria for applicants for Rentstart Move. In some parts of New South Wales, most Rentstart Standard and Rentstart Plus products are available through the Rentstart by Phone Service namely:

- up to a full bond;
- up to 2 weeks advance rent (3 weeks for furnished accommodation);
- up to 4 weeks rent arrears; and
- up to 3 nights rent in temporary accommodation.

Tenants' rights and responsibilities

In New South Wales, landlords or their real estate agents are required to give all new tenants a copy of the Office of Fair Trading brochure called 'The Renting Guide'. Buying a house or flat Houses or flats for sale are usually advertised in the newspaper and may also be advertised on the internet. Real estate agencies can also give you a list of properties they have for sale. If you are buying a home for the first time in Australia you may be eligible for an Australian Government 'First Home Owner Grant'.

If you need to borrow money to buy a property, contact your bank or other financial institution. In Australia, when buying a property, people usually use a solicitor or conveyancer to check the title deeds and organise the paperwork. Again, do not sign any contract unless you fully understand all of the terms and conditions.

If you want advice on the steps involved in buying a home and what government assistance schemes are available in New South Wales, the Home Purchase Advisory Service provides free information, advice and referrals on home purchase issues such as buying, building and obtaining housing finance. The Service publishes a range of free publications such as The A-Z of Home Purchase and Financing Your Home Purchase.

Public housing

If you are receiving a Centrelink payment or are on a low income you can apply to rent public housing. The waiting time for public housing varies according to where you want to live, your household size and the urgency of your housing need.

In NSW the Department of Housing rents out its own publicly owned dwellings to people on low incomes at subsidised rates. There is usually a long waiting time for this housing, but faster access to public housing may be available in some circumstances.

As part of the recent public housing reforms, eligibility for public housing has changed to concentrate on:

- assisting people on low incomes who need support to help them live independently; and
- people who have problems finding affordable housing in the private rental market that is suitable for their needs.

This change means a move away from using income as the primary eligibility criteria for public housing to include an assessment of need and capacity to find affordable housing.

Community housing is similar to public housing. It is managed by non-profit organisations rather than by the Department of Housing. The Office of Community Housing funds housing associations, co-operatives, churches, local government and other non-government community housing organisations to deliver affordable rental housing for people on low incomes. Most community housing properties are used for long term housing for people on low incomes who pay 25 percent of household income as rent. Emergency housing

In NSW the Department of Housing may be able to assist people who are experiencing a short-term housing crisis by providing temporary public or private housing accommodation for up to three months.

Emergency Temporary Accommodation is only available to people who:

- are not eligible for public housing; and
- are in urgent need of short-term temporary accommodation; and

- cannot resolve the need themselves; and
- cannot be accommodated by family or friends; and
- are not eligible for other forms of assistance from other agencies because of income or temporary residency status.

Essential household services

Whether you rent or buy, there are a number of household services that you may need to have connected to the property. Try to give the providers of these services a few days notice before you expect to move into a new property.

Before signing any contract for household services, you need to check that the service you are committing to is needed given your living arrangements. In some cases people have signed up to a 3 year contract for electricity supply, even though they were living in temporary housing. It is important to understand the terms and conditions of agreements with suppliers before making or signing any contracts for household services.

Telephone

Telephone companies, including the partly publicly owned company Telstra, are listed in the Yellow Pages telephone directory under 'Mobile telephones and accessories' and 'Telephones – long distance'.

Some of these services may require a connection fee. Please check with the service provider before you sign their contract. They will send you a bill regularly outlining the costs associated with their service. You should contact them straight away if you are unable to pay the bill on the due date, or if you prefer to receive smaller bills frequently rather than larger bills at longer intervals. Telephone calls to other countries can be very expensive and costs can quickly accumulate. You may need to monitor your overseas calls carefully or use a pre-paid call card (available from newsagents).

Many people in Australia have a mobile phone, however, calls made from mobile phones can be very expensive. Generally calls are timed by minutes or 30 second units when using a mobile phone to make calls including interstate and international calls. You should take care to fully understand the financial and legal obligations before you decide to buy a mobile phone.

7 Employment

Looking for work

The Australian labour market can be very competitive. How quickly new arrivals can find a job depends on economic factors, qualifications and skills, the type of work sought and particular circumstances which may affect the availability of certain types of work in different parts of the country.

The daily newspapers advertise 'Job vacancies' (or 'Positions vacant'), especially on Saturdays. Job vacancies can also be found on the internet. There are also private employment agencies, which are listed in the Yellow Pages telephone directory and internet employment boards.

Any Australian resident can register with Centrelink and the Job Network for help in finding a job. Once you are registered you can be referred to Job Network which consists of private, community and government organisations, contracted to the Australian Government to help people find employment.

As a newcomer, it is often a good idea to talk to an experienced employment counsellor or the Centrelink Career Information Centre to ensure that your approach to job-seeking is appropriate, particularly if you are having difficulties getting an interview.

Job Network services

There are a number of employment services available under the Job Network. These include:

- Job Search Support Services – available to eligible job seekers immediately upon registration with Centrelink or a Job Network member, it aims to help job seekers find work as quickly as possible.
- Intensive Support Services – provides further assistance to eligible job seekers including training to develop interview skills, and to be able to present themselves well to potential employers.
- Intensive Support – Job Search Training – includes providing individually tailored help to eligible job seekers, including improving their Job Search skills, and expanding Job Search Networks (activities include assistance with resumes and job application skills).
- Intensive Support – customised assistance – provides more one-on-one help to eligible job seekers, and includes addressing a job seeker's barriers to employment and tailoring the job seeker's efforts in looking for work.
- New Enterprise Incentive Scheme (NEIS) – helps unemployed people start and run their own business. Participants may be able to get NEIS assistance which provides small business training, income support and advice during the first year of business.

- Assessment Fee Subsidy for Overseas Trained Australian Residents – assists with the cost of examinations and assessments.

It is important to remember that just registering with a Job Network provider does not guarantee a job. You still need to actively seek work to increase your chances of finding a job.

All job seekers can also use the free Job Network Access facilities at Centrelink. A number of Job Network member agencies offer the use of telephones, photocopiers, fax machines, touch screens and computers (including the internet). For more information on services, including eligibility, contact:

Centrelink also refers clients for overseas skills recognition and provides advice about other employment services available locally.

Working conditions (employer/employee rights)

Employees in Australia have rights and are entitled to protections under applicable federal and state/territory laws. These laws set out rules like the minimum pay rates and minimum working conditions that employees are entitled to.

The Workplace Authority is the central point of contact for free advice and information on Australia's workplace relations system for both employers and employees. The Workplace Authority also accepts lodgements of workplace agreements and assesses whether the agreements are fair. The Workplace Authority is located in every capital city and can be contacted by phone through the Translation and Interpreting Service.

If you have concerns about how the laws apply in your workplace the Workplace Ombudsman can investigate complaints or suspected contraventions of federal workplace law; inquire into any act or practice that may be contrary to federal workplace law; start court proceedings to enforce federal workplace law; and represent workers who are, or might become a party to proceedings under the Workplace Relations Act 1996.

Superannuation is a specially designed long-term investment for your retirement. Superannuation is known as 'retirement savings' or 'pension income' around the world. Investing in superannuation while you are working is designed to help you build a nest-egg for your retirement. Nearly every employed person in Australia is a member of a superannuation fund.

Superannuation in Australia is commonly known as 'Super'. In most cases, your employer is required by law to pay an amount equivalent to nine percent (9%) of your earnings into a superannuation fund of your choice. You can also contribute extra money into your Super. To find out if your employer is paying the right amount of money, you should check with the people who manage your superannuation fund. Taxation

A Tax File Number (TFN) is a unique number issued to individuals or organisations by the Australian Taxation Office (ATO) and is needed for all forms of receiving income. Apply for your TFN as a first priority. The fastest way for new settlers to obtain their TFN is through the internet. Online TFN registration is available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week and all that is required is your passport details and your Australian address. After about 10 days you should receive your new TFN in the mail. You should protect your TFN and not store where it can be stolen such as your wallet, purse or mobile phone Application forms are available from Centrelink offices, by printing from the ATO website or by ringing the TFN Helpline. Processing time for the issue of the TFN is 28 days.

When you start work, your employer will ask you to complete a TFN Declaration form on which you need to write down your TFN. If you do not already have your TFN, the employer is not allowed to take out more than the normal amount of tax until the standard TFN processing time has elapsed.

If you earn any income in a financial year (between 1 July and 30 June), you must lodge an Income Tax Return by 31 October of that year, unless other arrangements have been made. As a resident you are subject to Australian law and are generally required to disclose all income received from inside or outside Australia when completing your income tax return.

Australia has a Goods and Services Tax (GST) of 10 percent on most items. The GST is included in the price you are asked to pay. Some things such as basic food, most education and health services, eligible child care and nursing home care are GST-free.

If you operate a business you will need an Australian Business Number (ABN) for your dealings with the Australian Taxation Office and other businesses. For more information, contact the Australian Taxation Office.

Overseas assets, investments and income

Australian residents are taxed on their worldwide income and must declare all foreign income in their income tax return. Whether you are a resident of Australia for tax purposes has to be determined on a case by case basis. The Australian Taxation Office (ATO) has information on its website that will help you understand your tax obligations.

The ATO can provide information about treatment of income such as:

- from investments such as securities and rental properties
- interest and royalties
- business activities overseas
- Receiving a pension from overseas.

If you have taxable income from overseas, you must declare it even if tax was taken out in the country where you earned the income. If foreign income is taxable in Australia, and you paid foreign tax on it, you may be entitled to a foreign tax credit. Taxes for which credit is allowed are called creditable taxes.

You must declare foreign income that is exempt from Australian tax. This foreign income may be taken into account when working out the amount of tax you owe on your assessable net income from both Australian and foreign sources.

If your financial affairs are complex you may wish to engage a tax agent or to seek advice from the Australian Taxation Office.

8 Social security

The Australian Government contributes to social and economic outcomes by delivering services to assist people to become self-sufficient and supporting those in need. Social security is provided mainly through the government agency called Centrelink. The Family Assistance Office provides assistance to families.

You can find Centrelink office locations and Family Assistance Office locations in your local White Pages telephone directory.

Centrelink payments

Access to income support payments will depend on your visa class and your particular circumstances, including your income and assets. Even if you become a permanent resident of Australia, a waiting period for payments could apply (see below).

If you do not speak English, Centrelink can provide an interpreter for your appointment. You can contact Centrelink in your own language by telephone:

Centrelink (multilingual call)

13 1202

Centrelink website

www.centrelink.gov.au

You must also provide identification documents (passport and travel documents, bank account details and accommodation details) to Centrelink when applying for payments. More information on identification requirements is available on the above number or by downloading the fact sheet Proving your identity to Centrelink from the Centrelink website.

You must have a Tax File Number (TFN) in order to receive any income support payments. Centrelink can provide you with a TFN application form you can lodge with the Australian Taxation Office.

Waiting periods

Generally newly arrived migrants have to live in Australia as permanent residents for two years before they can get most social security payments, including unemployment and sickness benefits, student allowances and a number of other payments. Only periods spent in Australia as a permanent resident count towards the waiting period. To be eligible for age and disability pensions, you generally have to live in Australia for 10 years.

Waiting period exemptions

Refugee and humanitarian entrants are exempt from the two-year waiting period. This also applies to their partners and dependent children if the relationship existed when the refugee or humanitarian entrant arrived in Australia.

Similarly, the partners and dependent children of Australian citizens and people who have been permanent residents for at least two years are exempt from the waiting period. There may also be other exemptions that apply.

Most payments are only available to people who live in Australia and have permission to remain permanently. A payment called Special Benefit may be available during the waiting period, if you are in hardship because of a substantial change of circumstances beyond your control. This payment is only available in very limited circumstances. Not being able to find a job or running out of money are not sufficient reasons to qualify for Special Benefit. If you have migrated with an Assurance of Support, your assurer will be responsible for repaying the amount that has been paid to you.

If you are caring for a person who is a permanent resident you may be eligible for Carer Payment which is not subject to a waiting period and if you are constantly providing care you may also be eligible for Carer Payment during the waiting period.

If you become widowed, disabled or a sole parent after becoming an Australian resident, you may be eligible for an allowance or pension. You may also be able to get a pension without having lived in Australia for 10 years if you are covered by an international social security agreement. As at January 2009, Australia has social security agreements with 22 countries.

Crisis Payment for humanitarian entrants

From 1 January 2008, eligibility for Crisis Payment was extended to humanitarian entrants who arrived in Australia for the first time on or after 1 January 2008 and hold one of the following visas:

- subclass 200 – Refugee
- subclass 201 – In-country Special Humanitarian
- subclass 202 – Global Special Humanitarian
- subclass 203 – Emergency Rescue, and
- subclass 204 – Woman at Risk

To qualify for the payment, a person must be eligible for a Centrelink pension or benefit, be in financial hardship, and be in Australia on the day of the claim. The person must claim within 7 days of arriving in Australia or contact Centrelink with an intent to claim within 7 days of arrival and lodge a claim within 14 days of that contact.

Crisis Payment for newly arrived humanitarian entrants is a one-off payment which provides additional financial support to assist with the initial settlement needs of those who are eligible. The amount of Crisis Payment is equal to one weeks payment of a person's basic Centrelink payment (excluding add-ons such as Rent Assistance or Pharmaceutical Allowance).

Family Assistance payments

If you have dependent children, the Australian Government offers a range of payments through the Family Assistance Office to support families with their work and family responsibilities. The main Family Assistance payments include Family Tax Benefit, Child Care Benefit, Child Care Tax Rebate, Baby Bonus and Maternity Immunisation Allowance.

Generally, you must hold a permanent visa in order to be eligible but there are some exceptions. There is no waiting period for these payments. It is important to understand that Family Assistance payments are intended only as income supplements, and are not enough to live on. Family Assistance payments are subject to an income test.

Private vehicles

New and second-hand vehicles are advertised for sale in newspapers and magazines and are also available from new car showrooms and second-hand car yards. The purchase price of a car does not usually include the cost of registration, stamp duty and compulsory insurance. These costs usually have to be paid separately by the buyer.

10 Education and child care

Child care

There are many types of full-time and part-time child care services available for children too young to go to school and for outside of school hours. You will find a range of child care options in the Yellow Pages telephone directory, including preschools or kindergartens, which prepare children for school, child care or day care centres, which look after younger children, and family day care where children are looked after by another parent along with their own family.

There are also playgroups, where parents and their children get together for the children to learn to interact together and for the parents to chat and share information.

While you are attending Adult Migrant English Program (AMEP) classes, you may be eligible for free child care for your under-school-age children. If you progress to a different study program after completing your AMEP entitlement it is important to review child care payment arrangements as other programs do not cover these costs.

For information provided by the government about:

Remember, you may be eligible for the Child Care Benefit and Family Assistance payments to help with child care and other costs. See Chapter 8, Social security.

Schools

Preschools are available for all 4 year old children. Preschool helps children to develop physically, emotionally and socially in the year before going to school.

It is compulsory for children between 6 and 15 years old to go to school. Children usually start school when they are 4 or 5 and often continue until they are 17 or 18 years old, in preparation for university or other further education. Children under 12 or 13 years old attend primary school and older children go to high school (or 'secondary school'). Some colleges (senior secondary schools) take only the oldest students, who are generally preparing for final examinations.

You can send your children to either a government or a non-government school. To find schools in your area, look under 'Schools' in the White Pages telephone directory, or visit the website www.education.gov.au

Government schools provide free education, however, most schools ask for a voluntary contribution to enhance the school's educational and sporting programs. Payment is a matter for decision by parents. There are additional educational materials or services that parents can be expected to provide or pay the school to provide. Parents may need to provide their children with pencils, pens, textbooks and school uniforms (where appropriate).

Note: Students holding temporary visas may be required to pay full school fees. Check with individual schools for details.

Non-government schools charge fees, and they may have a religious affiliation or a particular educational philosophy. Parents who want to find out about private education should make an appointment with the relevant non-government educational authority or contact the selected school directly.

Ask at your school about before and after school care or school holiday programs for school-age children.

Non-English speaking children

Newly arrived children who don't speak English may receive English as a Second Language (ESL) support. Newly arrived high school aged students can enrol in an Intensive English Centre or Intensive English High School located in metropolitan Sydney and Wollongong. Primary school aged children receive ESL support as part of their primary school program.

Interpreters

Parents and carers who speak limited or no English can ask the school for an interpreter to be present when discussing matters involving their children. They can also ring the Translating and Interpreting Service (TIS National) to contact the school.

Enrolment

To enrol your child in a school, contact the school by telephone or in person. You will need to take your visa or entry to Australia documents, proof of your child's date of birth, and any papers including school reports relating to their previous education. You may also need to show immunisation documents.

In NSW government schools, most students holding temporary visas are required to pay fees. Some visa categories are exempt from payment of fees and individual requests for exemption are considered on a case by case basis. For more information contact:

Numerous courses cover vocational training areas such as information technology, business services, arts and media, tourism and hospitality, construction and transport, rural and mining, manufacturing, and engineering. need to buy their own books. Students must complete secondary school to qualify for some courses. For more information contact:

Universities

Australian universities are among the best in the world. A normal undergraduate degree course takes 3 years, but there are also double-degrees and post-graduate studies which take longer to complete. Some courses have distance learning and part-time options. Universities may also offer shorter professional development courses.

For information on admission and courses, contact the individual university, or visit the going to university website.

Youth Allowance (for people aged 16-24 years) and Austudy payments (for those 25 years and over) provide financial assistance for full-time students undertaking approved study. Both payments depend on income and assets being within certain limits. A two-year waiting period for newly arrived residents generally applies. For more information about these financial support schemes, contact Centrelink (see Chapter 8, Social security).

11 The health system

Medicare

The Australian Government provides help with medical expenses and hospital care through a scheme called Medicare. Medicare pays for most of the costs of visits to the doctor, x-rays, blood tests, public hospital care, and certain other services.

To find out if you are eligible and to register with Medicare, you should go to a Medicare office with your passport, travel documents and permanent visa.

Medicare does not pay towards ambulance costs, dental services, physiotherapy, spectacles, podiatry, chiropractic services, or private hospital accommodation. For more information about Medicare, see Chapter 1, What to do soon after arrival.

Medicare website

www.medicareaustralia.gov.au

Centrelink Health Care Card

If you receive a Centrelink payment or earn a low income, you may be eligible for a government Health Care Card. The card will entitle you to a range of concessions, including the cost of medicines and the health services: doctor, dentist and ambulance. For more information on Centrelink, see Chapter 8, Social security.

Even if you have a Health Care Card, you will still need to present your Medicare card for all basic hospital and medical treatment in conjunction with your Health Care Card.

Private health insurance

Many Australians choose to pay for private health insurance. This covers all or some of the cost of treatment as a private patient in private or public hospitals, and can include some services that Medicare does not cover, such as dental care, most optical care and ambulance transport. The costs and types of cover vary widely, so if you decide to get private health insurance, it is important to compare different funds and check the details carefully before you buy the policy.

Incentives

The government offers financial incentives aimed at encouraging people to take out private health insurance. If you are considering taking up private health insurance you should be aware of:

1. The 30 per cent Rebate – All Australians are eligible to claim the 30 per cent Rebate if they are eligible for Medicare and have a complying health insurance policy that provides hospital treatment, general treatment ('ancillary' or 'extras') cover or both. (for people aged 65-69 years the Rebate is 35 per cent, and for people aged 70 years and over the Rebate is 40 per cent).
2. The Medicare Levy Surcharge – Most Australian taxpayers have a Medicare Levy included in the amount of tax they pay. The Medicare Levy Surcharge is an additional 1 per cent surcharge imposed on people who earn over a certain income threshold and do not have hospital insurance. The income thresholds are currently AUD70,000 per year for singles and AUD140,000 per year for couples or families.
3. Lifetime Health Cover - This scheme encourages people to take out hospital cover at an early age. If a person takes out hospital cover after 1 July following their 31st birthday, they will pay more for the same level of cover than a person who took out cover before 1 July following their 31st birthday. The cost increases by 2 per cent for each year that a person delays taking out cover.

Special conditions apply for new migrants who arrive in Australia after July 1 following their 31st birthday. Migrants do not pay an increased cost if they purchase private hospital cover within 12 months from the day they are registered as eligible for Medicare.

It is important to consider taking out hospital cover in the first year after you are registered for Medicare. If you choose to wait more than 12 months after you are registered for Medicare, then you will be required to pay a Lifetime health Cover loading equal to 2 per cent for every year you are over the age of 30 years when you do decide to take out hospital cover.

Medical assistance

Emergencies

Emergency treatment can be obtained through some medical centres or the emergency departments of hospitals. Public and private hospitals are listed under 'Hospitals' in the White Pages telephone directory. Information about ambulances is given in Chapter 3, Emergency services.

When you go to hospital, remember to take with you any medicines you are using and also your Medicare card, private health insurance membership card, Health Benefits or Pension Concession Card.

Emergency treatment is available on a 24 hour basis at the 'Casualty' or 'Emergency' departments of public hospitals.

If the situation is not an emergency you should seek medical assistance from a general practitioner.

General Practitioners (GPs)

If it is not an emergency, you should go first to a family doctor (also called a 'general practitioner' or GP) or a medical centre. You can choose which doctor or medical centre you attend – they are listed in the Yellow Pages telephone directory under 'Medical practitioners'.

Your doctor may bulk bill. This means you will be asked to sign a Medicare form, and the doctor sends this form to Medicare, which then pays the doctor. Otherwise the doctor will charge you, and you may be able to claim the cost back from Medicare or your private health insurance fund (if you are eligible). In either case, you must bring your Medicare card (and Health Care Card if you have one).

Interpreting

Doctors may access a priority telephone line to have an interpreter for the duration of your medical consultation. This is done at no cost to you or your doctor, provided you are a permanent resident or an Australian citizen and when the medical consultation is covered by Medicare. A medical practitioner can also book an on-site interpreter if this is required.

Specialists

You cannot visit a medical specialist without seeing a GP first. The doctor may refer you to a medical or other specialist for further treatment.

Medicines

If your doctor believes you need medicines, you may be given a prescription to take to a chemist shop (or pharmacy). Many medicines, such as antibiotics, are only available with a prescription. If you have a Health Care Card or Pension Concession Card provided by Centrelink you will be eligible for a concession on certain medicines. You must also bring your Medicare card when collecting your medicines from the chemist shop.

It is important to read labels and instructions on medicines carefully and ask questions if unclear. For help or information about medicines, speak to a pharmacist or telephone:

Community Health Centres

Community Health Centres provide health services for people of all ages at low cost. Not all centres provide the same services. However, services often available include nursing, health education and promotion, physiotherapy, dental care, medical care, counselling and social welfare. They are listed in the White Pages telephone directory under 'Community Health Centres'.

Mental health

A number of services exist for people requiring help for mental health problems and mental illness. In most common cases, people needing assistance for mental health difficulties should contact their general practitioner or Community Health Centre.

Services for people from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds

Many hospitals and large health centres have teams of health professionals who supply services for local migrant communities. These services include counselling, advice, referral and health information. Ring your local hospital or Community Health Centre to see if there is a Multicultural Health Worker for your language group.

Child safety and accident prevention

Immunisation

Immunisation protects children (and adults) against harmful infections. Immunisation is not compulsory but is recommended for all children. Some states and territories (NSW, VIC, TAS and the ACT) require a record of a child's immunisations to be presented when the child attends day care or starts school. This is so the child care centre or school knows which children have not been immunised. Immunisations can be obtained from your family doctor or your Community Health Centre.

If you wish to obtain the immunisations from your Community Health Centre or local council, you will need to contact them to find out which immunisations are available and when they are available.

Your child must be up-to-date with immunisation or have an immunisation exemption for you to receive Child Care benefit.

Dental services

There are private dentists in your local area who usually charge a fee for service. You may wish to take out private health insurance to assist with the payment for dental services.

The State and Territory Governments also provide a limited range of free oral health care to eligible Centrelink concession card holders. Services provided are primarily relief of pain and some basic oral health care, including dentures. Please contact your nearest medical centre or hospital for details of services in your area, and contact Centrelink (see Chapter 8, Social security) to see if you qualify for a concession.

Accessing aged care

Residential aged care is for older people who can no longer live at home for various reasons, such as illness, disability, bereavement, an emergency, the needs of their carer, family or friends, or just because it is harder to manage at home without help. Those who need less care than that offered by aged care homes may wish to consider independent living units or retirement villages.

Aged Care Assessment Teams (ACATs) advise on what type of Australian Government funded services you need to help you continue living in your home or whether you should enter an aged care home.

There are 5 steps to follow when you want to move into an aged care home. They are:

- Assessing your eligibility
- Finding a home
- Working out the cost
- Applying

- Moving and settling in.

12 Recreation and media

Outdoor activities

Australia is well suited to activities with an outdoor focus, like travelling, bushwalking, camping and sport. There are a few safety rules to remember when outdoors:

- At the beach only swim in areas patrolled by lifesavers. Always swim between the flags. Not all beaches are patrolled by lifesavers.
- Avoid swimming and fishing alone.
- Wear hats or caps on sunny days to avoid sunburn and skin cancer. This is especially important for young children and many schools will insist on sunhats being worn throughout the summer months.
- Wear protective sunscreen. This can be purchased from a chemist or supermarket.
- Open fires and barbeques are not permitted on total fire ban days. For information on total fire ban days contact:

Media

Most newsagencies in major shopping centres have newspapers in a variety of languages, but if they do not stock the particular one you want you can ask them to order it for you.

Special Broadcasting Service (SBS) television and radio stations have programs in many different community languages. The weekly programs are listed in metropolitan newspapers. A list of ethnic radio stations can be found at the National Ethnic and Multicultural Broadcasters' Council (NEMBC) website.

Some local multilingual radio stations are:

Before signing any contract for communication services, all consumers need to check that the service they are committing to is needed given their living arrangements. In some cases people have signed up to a pay television subscription believing that they needed the service for free-to-air viewing.

Australian citizenship

For most permanent residents, the first step in becoming an Australian citizen is passing the citizenship test. To prepare for the test, you should read the citizenship resource book which is available on the website listed below.

Once you have passed the test and satisfied the other requirements for Australian citizenship, including living in Australia for a specified period of time and being of good character, you will need to make an application for Australian citizenship. If your application is successful, you will be invited to attend a citizenship ceremony. At the ceremony, most adult applicants will be required to make the Pledge of Commitment before they become Australian citizens. For more information including eligibility and application forms go to:

Citizenship Information Line 131 880
(in Australia)

Citizenship website www.citizenship.gov.au/

After you become an Australian citizen, you may apply for an Australian passport. If you continue to hold the citizenship of another country as well as your Australian citizenship, you should travel in and out of Australia using your Australian passport.

For Australian citizens it is compulsory to enrol to vote if you are 18 years of age or older. There is the opportunity to enrol at your Australian citizenship ceremony. You can also enrol at 17 years of age to be ready to vote once you turn 18.

Enrolment forms are available at post offices, Australian Electoral Commission (AEC) offices and the AEC website. Completing one form will enrol you for federal elections, state/territory elections and most local government elections. Every time you move address you must complete a new enrolment form. Resident Return Visas

If you are an Australian permanent resident planning to leave Australia for any temporary period and wish to return to Australia, you may need a Resident Return Visa. Contact DIAC to find out whether you will need a visa to return to Australia.

Family visits to Australia

To visit

Visitors need to apply for a visa which covers the full period of their stay in Australia. Each type of visitor's visa has special conditions attached, so contact the nearest Australian Overseas Immigration Office (see below) for more information.

The Electronic Travel Authority (ETA) system is available to passport holders from more than 30 countries through authorised travel agencies and airlines, and from most Australian diplomatic offices. ETAs enable many short-term visitors to Australia to obtain authority to travel to Australia at the same time as they book their travel arrangements. For ETAs, there is no need for the traveller to complete an application form for a visa. More information is available at www.eta.immi.gov.au/

To migrate

There are three main parts to Australia's migration program:

- Family migration. The applicant must have a relative in Australia to sponsor them.
- Skilled migration. The applicant must have skills or special abilities which will contribute to the economy or other areas of Australian life.
- Refugee, Humanitarian, Special Humanitarian and Special Assistance programs.

There are strict requirements in each migration category, which your relatives must meet to migrate. Migration regulations are complex and change often, so it is best to contact DIAC for information on your individual situation. For more information see:

14 Local government and community services

Australia has three spheres of government: commonwealth, state or territory, and local. Your local council looks after the area you live in and provides many important services available to all people in the local community. Councils are funded largely by the rates paid by local property owners. You do not have to own a property to access these services.

Community services

Local councils often provide public halls for community groups to use, sporting, recreational and cultural facilities. Councils can also provide a wide range of support services such as child health centres, child care centres, youth workers, and aged care and disability services.

Multicultural services

Many local councils have multicultural or community workers who can give you valuable help and advice as you settle into life in Australia. Some have services designed to meet the particular needs of senior citizens from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds.

Libraries

Most areas have public libraries which people can join to borrow books free of charge. Libraries also have or can order books in languages other than English. In most libraries you can access the internet.

Other services

Councils maintain the local roads, provide public toilets, and make sure shops and restaurants meet proper health standards. They control building developments, and if you want to make changes to your real estate property, you must check with your local council that you have approval.

Councils are responsible for garbage collection and recycling. Check with the council or your neighbours to find out about collection times.

More information

Visit your local council or your local library for further information on services available in your neighbourhood. Council telephone numbers and addresses are listed in the White Pages telephone directory under the name of the local district. Remember, they are the experts on your local area! Information about local government is also available from the website www.gov.au
