

Fact Sheet – Stage One Implementation of the Knight Review Changes to the Student Visa Program

Stage one of the Australian Government's response to the Strategic Review of the student visa program will be progressively being implemented before the end of 2011. The majority of these changes commenced on 5 November 2011 and are detailed below.

Reducing the financial requirements for some student visa applicants

From 5 November 2011, the government reduced the financial requirements for higher risk Assessment Level 3 and Assessment Level 4 student visa applicants. This would mean that students who are subject to Assessment Level 3 or Assessment Level 4 will need up to approximately AUD36 000 less in the bank when applying for a visa. Applicants for the non-university sector in particular will benefit from this change.

The genuine temporary entrant requirement

From 5 November 2011, the government introduced a new genuine temporary entrant requirement for all student visa applicants. This requirement will help to reduce migration risk and maintain the integrity of the student visa program. Student visa applicants are assessed on whether their individual circumstances indicate that their main aim is for a temporary stay in Australia. Applicants seeking to exploit the student visa program, for example, those whose main purpose is to work, will have their applications refused. Student visa holders who have completed their studies and not obtained a further visa will be required to depart Australia.

More flexible arrangements for English language study

The government has made English language study in Australia more accessible by removing the English language test requirements for higher risk Assessment Level 4 and above stand-alone English Language Intensive Courses for Overseas Students (ELICOS) visa applicants. This change commenced on 5 November 2011.
